

PSYC 434: Psychological Testing

Examines the psychological assessment techniques used in vocational, personality, and social instruments. Topics include test construction, measures of reliability and validity, assessment philosophies, and ethics of psychological testing. Students will complete a collection of tests, write reports addressing the results, and design their own tests.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites:

9 hrs. of psychology, including BEHV 210, and junior or senior standing.

Program: Psychology