

COMD 355: Web Design and Development

Explains interactive communication on the internet. The topics included in this course are web page development, HTML, graphic communication, aesthetics of interactive documents, uses of digital audio/video, and other subjects related to website production. Students learn and use Adobe software. Students attend lectures and demonstrations during class time and may work on assignments and projects using department facilities.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites:

COEM 175.

Program: Digital Arts/Graphic Design Communication