

FINA 363: Finance Fundamentals

Examines principles and problems involved in the finance function of firms. Topics include taxes, cash flow, capital management, budgets, reorganization, and investments, identification of financial performance measures, creation of short-term cash budgets, application of basic valuation model to cash flow, development of capital budget techniques, determination of short and long-term costs of debt and equity capital, analysis of credit terms, and evaluate lease v. purchase decisions.

Credits: 3

Program: Undergraduate