

CPSC 111: Introduction to Computer Science

Introduction to the field of computer science, including computer architecture and ethics. Emphasizes the logical operations of a digital computer, problem-solving techniques, development of algorithms, design techniques and structured programming concepts. Topics are taught using the high order language- C++. Proper program design, coding disciplines, documentation, debugging, and testing techniques are also discussed.

Credits: 3

Program: Computer Science